

Comer Publishes Central North Carolina Research Volumes

Genealogist and researcher James Vann Comer has recently published a two-volume set of books containing material of interest to all doing genealogical and area research work in the counties of Chatham, Harnett, Lee and Moore. These volumes, Central North Carolina Collection Volumes 1 and 2 1985-2016 are drawn from his thirty years of research in this area.

"My intention in this publication is to fairly represent the complete history of Central North Carolina by merging oral tradition, genealogical research and historical research. Too often genealogists and historians like to claim their famous ancestors yet set aside their less famous or infamous ancestors. Since the beginning of time people have struggled with many of the same problems we face today. Whether you find good or bad remember they were just people just like you and me."
