

Have a Chatham Story about Women's Suffrage? If so, please share!

The North Carolina Genealogical Society is asking for stories about the Women's Suffrage Movement from all across the state for a future journal issue. Can you help?

Was there someone in your Chatham County family who was active in the suffrage movement in North Carolina? Many communities formed "Equal Suffrage Associations." A statewide organization also existed.

Do you have a photo of a Chatham person wearing any suffrage-related regalia, either individually or as part of a group? Do you have ephemera that you can photograph to share, such as program papers, buttons, or something else? Do you remember a mother, grandmother, aunt, friend, or neighbor talking about participating by signing a petition, marching in a parade, attending meetings, or doing fundraising?

If so, please contact CCHA at history@chathamhistory.org. We would like to save your information for future generations and, if you agree, share your Chatham story with the NCGS.
